Introduction

It is not easy to know how to start learning new words in a language that is not your native one. Most second-language learners depend on a favorite dictionary to get a quick translation of an unknown word; however, dictionaries are full of words that you may never need to use, or even to understand. How do you know which words to learn first?

One of the purposes of this book is to acquaint you with the English words that are most frequently used in the United States today—the words that people use every day with their family, friends, coworkers, and other people in the community in general. Presented here is a basic vocabulary of more than fifteen hundred words that have been carefully chosen because of their frequent appearance and usefulness in daily life. Once you have learned these words and mastered the structures in which they are used, you will be well equipped to add new words to this list, and you'll gradually continue to increase your working vocabulary.

The words of a language can be divided into two groups: content words and function words. Content words in English are either nouns—words that name people, places, things, or abstracts; adjectives—words that describe nouns; verbs—words that describe the actions of nouns; or adverbs—words that describe how an action is performed. Function words are those that form a structure that enables us to put the content words together to make sense. English function words include, for example, words such as a, the, of, for, and and—words that would be difficult to draw a picture of or to define in a word or two. Both types of words are extremely important for communication in any language.

The second purpose of this book is to provide practice in using content words within the framework of the function words that go with them. By practicing these two types of words together you will be not only learning new vocabulary but also using it correctly, enabling you to form meaningful sentences with a variety of individual words.

There are four sections in the book: Part I: Nouns, Part II: Adjectives, Part III: Verbs, and Part IV: Adverbs. Each of these parts contains a number of units, and each unit consists of special vocabulary for a certain topic and extensive exercises to practice it.

How to Use This Book

The best way to learn new vocabulary is to use it, both in speech and in writing. The exercises in this book are designed to give you that practice by encouraging you to write down exactly what you would say in the context provided. The repetition of words and structures in various types of exercises will help you remember the words and make them yours to use in real situations.

Following are suggestions to help you get the most out of this book:

1. Get a good dictionary, either bilingual or English only, to use as suggested below.
2. Copy on a separate sheet of paper the lists of words presented in each unit.
3. You will already know some of the words. Write a check by each one if you are certain of its meaning.
4. Look up in your dictionary the words that you do not know or are not sure of, and write a word in your language or a definition in English next to it on your paper.
5. Do the written exercises for the entire unit.
6. In the exercises that ask you to write personal sentences, try to use words that are new to you. Of course, if the new words do not fit, use words that you already know.
7. Compare your answers with those in the Answer Key at the back of the book. For the exercises that require personal answers, you may wish to ask a native speaker friend to read your answers to see if they are correct.
8. Go back to your original list, cover up the translations or definitions that you first wrote, and see if you now know all the new words.
9. Try writing more sentences, using the same patterns used in the exercises, to further practice the words that you haven't completely mastered so far.
10. Keep practicing!

PART I

NOUNS

Nouns are the words we use to name all the things we know about, have, see, hear, taste, smell, or feel. This includes words for people, such as man, teacher, and friend. It includes words for places, such as city, kitchen, and street. It includes words for things, such as ball, tree, and computer. And it includes words for things we know exist but can't touch, such as idea, air, pollution, and strength.

Many nouns can be counted—one friend, two friends, for example. These nouns have plural forms, which in English usually means they have an -s added to the end, according to certain set spelling and pronunciation patterns. A few nouns have “irregular” plurals—instead of ending in -s, they have forms that have survived from earlier forms of English or were adapted from other languages. Examples of these include women, men, children, media, and phenomena.

Other nouns cannot be counted—air, wind, and pollution, for example. They have no plural forms, are used with singular verbs, and are called “noncount” nouns. But noncount nouns can also be things that we can count! First, there are those that it would take a lifetime to count, so we call them by a more general noncount noun, such as hair, sugar, or flour. And then there are those that we categorize in general groups that are named by noncount nouns, such as furniture, mail, silverware, and china. Of course we can count chairs, tables, or beds, but the general category furniture is never made plural. The noncount noun mail includes the letters and cards that we can count. English has a lot of these words.

One thing that singular, plural, and noncount nouns have in common is that they can all, in certain situations, be preceded by the article the. The before a noun indicates that both the speaker and the hearer know exactly which one of the nouns is being referred to. “The groceries are in the car,” for example, informs the hearer that “the groceries that we just bought” are in “the car that we have.”

When you know the patterns for using nouns, you can add new ones to your vocabulary every day and know you are using them correctly. Have fun with nouns!

Singular, Plural, and Noncount Nouns

Using Singular Nouns

English nouns can be divided into two categories: count nouns and noncount nouns.

A count noun is singular when there is one of the person, place, or thing it names.

When a noun is singular, use a or an before it. Use a if it begins with a consonant sound; use an if it begins with a vowel sound.

exercise 2-1

Write a or an before each of the following singular nouns.

- |                    |                      |
|--------------------|----------------------|
| 1. _____ brother   | 9. _____ reporter    |
| 2. _____ aunt      | 10. _____ stewardess |
| 3. _____ artist    | 11. _____ sister     |
| 4. _____ employer  | 12. _____ uncle      |
| 5. _____ janitor   | 13. _____ dentist    |
| 6. _____ professor | 14. _____ driver     |
| 7. _____ patient   | 15. _____ actor      |

Use there are before the word no when it indicates zero. No is followed by a plural noun:

Using Articles with Singular, Plural, and Noncount Nouns

The indefinite articles a and an are used before singular nouns that refer to any one of that person, place, or thing:

A clock is an instrument that marks time.

A watch is a clock that you wear on your wrist.

The previous sentences do not name a specific clock or watch; they refer to clocks and watches in general.

The articles a and an can refer to a specific singular noun to tell or ask someone about it for the first time:

I have a clock that is 150 years old.
 Her boyfriend gave her a watch for her birthday.

There are no indefinite articles for plural and noncount nouns. To refer to people, places, or things in general, no word ( $\emptyset$ ) is placed before the plural or noncount noun:

$\emptyset$  Clocks are instruments that mark time.
 $\emptyset$  Mail includes anything that can be delivered by the post office.

No word ( $\emptyset$ ) can refer to a plural or noncount noun to tell or ask someone about it for the first time:

Her boyfriend brings her  $\emptyset$  flowers every week.
 You got  $\emptyset$  mail this morning.

She showed me the watch her boyfriend gave her for her birthday.

When two or more people own or have something, the plural noun is followed by an apostrophe if it ends in -s:

PART II

ADJECTIVES

Adjectives are the words that allow us to be artists. Instead of painting the colors or making the music, we can use adjectives—red, beautiful, lively, loud—to describe the nouns in our lives.

Adjectives can be simple to use, as they don't change to fit the nouns they describe. For example, the same adjective can describe New York (a big city), New York and Los Angeles (big cities), or a noncount noun such as "furniture" (big furniture).

Adjectives can also be used to compare nouns with each other. To do this, certain adjectives have comparative and superlative forms that are made by adding -er or -est at the end, for example, "He is taller than his brother" or "He is the tallest boy in the class." Others are preceded by more or most to make these comparisons, for example, "She is more patient than the other teacher" or "She is the most patient teacher at the school."

When you know the patterns for using adjectives, it is easy to add new ones to your vocabulary. Enjoy adjectives and be creative!

This page intentionally left blank

Unit 8

Making Descriptions

Adjectives describe nouns and are usually placed before the nouns they describe:

This is good food.

He's a nice man.

She has an expensive car.

I got cheap tickets.

A form of the verb be can separate an adjective from the noun (or pronoun) it describes:

The food is good.

That man is nice.

Her car is expensive.

The tickets were cheap.

Two adjectives can be connected by the word and:

Her car is big and expensive.

The man is smart and nice.

A comma is used to separate adjectives when there are more than two:

Her car is big, comfortable, and expensive.

The man is smart, nice, and handsome.

Nouns are compared with other nouns by the strength of their adjectives. An adjective made stronger is followed by the word than in a comparison.

One-Syllable Adjectives

She is taller than her sister.

He is faster than the other runner.

These tickets were cheaper than those.

low	lower

gray	grayer

Other adjectives of one syllable that end in a consonant-vowel-consonant are made stronger by repeating the final consonant and adding -er:

These shoes are not as comfortable as my old ones.

In a comparison a stronger adjective is followed by than; a weaker adjective is followed by as:

In each blank, make the adjective in parentheses stronger or weaker, as appropriate.

PART III

VERBS

Verbs are the wonderful words that give life to language.

The most common verb, be, for example, allows us to tell who or what exists in the world, and also when, where, how, and why it exists. In addition, just by changing the form of the verb, we can tell about what existed in the past and what will exist in the future, plus what we wish existed or what we would do if something existed. The verb be is used in a different manner from all other English verbs—it has different forms and different patterns.

All other verbs follow a second set of patterns, which enable us to tell facts about people—where and how they live, what they have, how they look and feel, what they like, what they think, and what they do; they also enable us to tell how things work and what happens in the world. And again, with a change in form, we can put all this information in the past or the future, or we can make wishes and conjectures.

Verbs also enable us to ask and answer questions, give commands and suggestions, accept or refuse, and relate and communicate.

Yes, there are a lot of irregular forms that have to be memorized, but they are worth the effort. Verbs are about life. Live well with verbs!

PART IV

ADVERBS

Adverbs are the mechanical tools in our vocabulary. They include words that help us give facts about the states or actions described by verbs. Adverbs enable us to tell where, when, or how often something exists or takes place. For example, “The party is here.” “The party is tonight.” “They have a party every night.” Adverbs enable us to tell how an activity is done, for example, “She drives very carefully.”

Adverbs are important for understanding and giving information about events and activities. Be accurate with adverbs!

Everywhere Else

Electronic devices affect practically every area of our lives. In our homes, garage door openers, programmed heating, air-conditioning, and other appliances, security systems, baby monitors—even our children's toys—are more and more based on ever-changing technology. The same is true regarding our health care, with machines that see inside our bodies, such as MRI (magnetic resonance imaging) and CAT (computerized axial tomography) scan machines and others that inspect our skin, bones, eyes, and teeth; radiation machines, heart pumps, laser surgery, and electronic hearing aids are just a few of the many ways that technology has helped improve the quality of our lives. Art and music have been transformed. Our schools are incorporating technology in an effort to improve learning. In our towns and cities, among many other functions, electronic devices control traffic and enable the police to fight crime. Offices cannot function without the use of electronic devices, and industry depends on technology in the manufacture of almost everything. In short, without technology, our lives would be brought to a standstill.

A good GPS can be a lifesaver when you are lost.

By using ATMs when you travel to another country, you can avoid having to change your cash into local currency.

Often if you don't find what you want in a store, you can find it and purchase it online.
